Major Requirements

Pre-law education at NJIT is administered by the history faculty. Named the Law, Technology and Culture major, the program draws upon NJIT and Rutgers-Newark courses in the academic disciplines of history, STS, philosophy, engineering, management, environmental science and policy, information technology, criminal justice, and political science. The degree requires 123 credits, 51 of which are in major courses from four fields. These must be completed with a grade of C or higher. Courses used to fulfill other majors or minors may not be used again to fulfill the LTC major. Each student's program must be approved by the LTC advisor or by an advisor designated by the head of the NJIT Federated History Department.
